THE growing Importance of the College of NEW-JERSEY, (for the Use of which the above Lottery is principally designed) is now generally known through every Province of America. It has hitherto subsisted, and been raised to its present Situation, entirely by the Favour of the Public. In the Centre of North-America, and in a pleasant, healthy Country, it is well fitted for the most extensive Usefulness. The Success which has attended the vigorous Efforts already made, to raise its Funds, and furnish the Means of a complete and finished Education, to all who are sent to it, has encouraged those concerned in the present Attempt; especially as several very judicious Persons have warmly recommended it, signifying their Surprize, that at a Time, when so many have taken this Method of promoting public Undertakings, a SEMINARY, of such Importance, should not also put in for a Share of the general Benevolence. This, added to the other Schemes for the Support and Improvement of the College, will afford so many Friends of that Institutoin, an Opportunity of contributing with very little Risk of losing, and a considerable Chance of Gain to themselves, who would not incline that the small Sums they could spare, should appear in a Subscription Paper.

As a Number of Tickets are already engaged, and many Gentlemen of extensive Acquaintance have interested themselves in this Measure, the Drawing will commence the First Week in October next, in the Town of New-Castle on Delaware, and a List of the fortunate Numbers published, and sent to the several Towns and Places where the Tickets may be sold. The Prizes, after deducting Fifteen per Cent. for the Purposes of the Lottery, will be paid by the Gentlemen of whom they were purchased.

Orders for Tickets will be complied with, by applying to Richard Stockton, Jonathan Serjeant, Esqrs. or Mr. Enos Kelso, at Prince-Town; to William P. Smith, William Livingston, or Robert Ogden, Esqrs. at Elizabeth-Town, New-Jersey; to Messrs. Broom and Co. at New-York; George Bryan, and Joseph Read, Esquires; Doctors William Shippen, John Redman, or Robert Harris, Messrs. Andrew Hodge, Gunning Bedford, William Henry, John Bayard, Isaac Snowden, Jonathan B. Smith, William Semple, Robert Paisley, or William and Thomas Bradford, of Philadelphia; Mr. David Walker, in New-Port, on Potowmack, Maryland; Mr. Archibald M'Call, in Tappahannock; Mr. John Talliaferro, in Fredericksburg; and Mr. William Holt, Williamsburgh, Virginia; or to the following Gentlemen, viz. George Monro, David Finney, John Thomson, and Nicholas Vandyke, Esqrs; Messrs. BALTIMORE, (Maryland) AUGUST 26.

A FEW weeks ago, a large rattle snake was killed on a gentleman's plantation, in the neighbourhood of this town, in the belly of which were found three middle sized rabits. The snake had ten rattles, and was supposed to be about thirteen years old.

NEW-LONDON, AUGUST 20.

Extract of a Letter from Grandterre, in Guadaloup, to a Gentleman in this Place, dated June 5th, 1773.

"The French King has suppressed all the convents in these Islands,—there is a Bishop arrived at Martinique for that and this island; his vicar general is to reside at Basseterre; all parishes are to be served with secular clergy: The visible effects of the different orders have been sequestered or rather seized for account of the King. I saw the ceremony for this parish, here, four days ago. The fathers that chuse to go to France, and remain in their convents are to be transported at the expence of his Majesty, and have 1200 Livres Tournois pension. By what I can learn, they are not to receive no more new brethren; so that they must soon moulder away. It is thought the secular clergy will be allowed to marry, and that the Gallican church will be governed in much the same manner as that of England. This is a great stroke on Popery: I wish they may go on till they have the Holy Father no more than a good Bishoprick."

NEW-PORT, (Rhode-Island) AUGUST 23.

The Honourable the General Assembly of this colony met here last week, when the Hon. Metcalf Bowler, Esq; speaker of the Lower House, read letters from the speakers of the Assemblies of a number of the other colonies, concurring with the resolves, &c. lately entered into by the glorious House of Burgesses of Virginia.

NEW-YORK, AUGUST 23.

Wednesday the Hon. John Watts, Esq; Lord Drummond, and Col. Robertson, who accompanied his Excellency our Governor, in a tour to Canada, returned to this city, having left Excellency at Quebec.

In the Grosvenor, came Passengers, the Hon. John Penn, Esq; Governor of Pennsylvania, and his Lady; John Allen, Esq; Mr. Brimer, and Capt. John Riddle, of Philadelphia; Capt. Halley, Agent for the New-Hampshire Claimants, and some others.

The Governor on his landing, was saluted by a discharge of the cannon from our battery.

AUGUST 30.

On Tuesday last his Excellency our Governor, arrived in perfect health from Quebec, and was saluted with the discharge of cannon from the battery.

We are assured, that Mr. Sauthier and Mr. Collins were to set out from Quebec, the second week in this month, in order complete the line of partition of New-York and Quebec governments, between the rivers Connecticut and St. Lawrence, in the 45th degree of North latitude.

Monday last arrived here the Brigt. Neptune, from the island of Lewis, in the North of Scotland, with 150 passengers and servants.

SEPTEMBER 6.

Tuesday afternoon arrived in this city, a lady who stiles herself the Marshioness de Wal de Graave. The case of this Person appears extremely enigmatical, she is said to be the same described in most of the public papers, under the name of Sarah Wilson, alias Lady Caroline Matilda, and character of a lady of quality, with alliances of the most exalted kind; still she insists upon the verity of these pretensions, and makes the same impressions on many, who converse with her, as she has very remarkably done in the southern provinces.

Yesterday evening we had a very heavy hail storm, some of the stones weighed two ounces, and almost filled a wine glass.

On Tuesday evening arrived the brigt. Jamaica, Capt. James Farquhar, from Savannah Le Mar, in Jamaica.—Just before his departure from thence, an express arrived there on the way to Kingston, to solicit assistance against the rebellious negroes at Honduras, who were murthering and destroying every Person and thing in their way.

Extract of a Letter from the Bay of Honduras, to a Gentleman in Philadelphia, dated July 1st, 1773.

"I am desired by Mrs. Deakin to acquaint you of the death of her husband, who was most cruelly murdered in bed, in the night of the 26th ult. by a gang of disaffected negroes, who rose against the white people, and committed several most barbarous murders, and still continue in open rebellion, notwithstanding every possible endeavour has been used to suppress them.

SEPTEMBER 6.

Friday last his Excellency the Governor, attended by his Majesty's Council, the Mayor, Trustees, and a number of respectable gentlemen, went in procession to the place intended for the erection of an hospital in this city; his Excellency laid the first foundation stone in the South-east corner; each gentleman, according to seniority, laid a stone, and made liberal presents to the workmen.

Capt. Offat, in 25 days from Pensacola, the 18th of August, spoke with a Spanish ship from Carthagena, with Troops on board, for the Havana.——With Capt. Offat came Passengers, the Hon. Philip P. Livingston, Esq; secretary of the province of West-Florida; the Hon. John Wood, Esq; one of his Majesty's Council for Virginia; and Mr. Evan Jones, and Mr. Joseph Blackwell, Merchants of Pensacola.

Thursday last his Excellency Governor Francklin, and his lady, arrived from Albany, but last from Livingston's Manor.

We are well informed, that Mr. B. Romans, the publisher of the new maps of the ceded countries, is nominated King's Botanist for the Floridas with a handsome appointment.

On Sunday afternoon the 29th ult. departed this life, in the 51st year of his age, Mr. Samson Simson, an Israelite indeed (in whom unfeigned reverence for the Supreme Being, Integrity of heart, and humanity, are characteristick.) Kind and tender, he was a comfort to his aged parents and brethren—liberal in his principles—sensible, cheerful, and friendly: He was highly esteemed by a large circle of friends and acquaintances of various denominations. His knowledge in trade was extensive; always upright in his dealings, he supported the character of a merchant with much credit. He was a useful member of society in general, particularly to that wherewith he was more intimately connected; and a real friend to the Liberties of this country.

Our last advice from Williamsburgh, inform us of the death of Mr. William Rind, Printer to that colony: He was a gentleman of a very amiable character, being a tender husband, a kind parent, an indulgent Master, and a faithful servant of the public.

SEPTEMBER 9.

The following is a more particular account than has been hitherto given of the proceedings of a special Court of Oyer and Terminer, holden at Morris-Town, in New-Jersey, for the discovery and trial of the Persons concerned in counterfeiting the paper currency of New-Jersey, Pennsylvania, and New-York.

Samuel Ford and John King having escaped from goal, made it extremely difficult to discover their accomplices. The Court opened on Tuesday, August 31th, and it was the Friday following before the least intimation could be got of any person concerned, when one of them, who lay under the censure of three convictions, the one for aiding Ford and King in their escape, and the other for high misdemeanours, on being hard pushed, and in order to mitigate his punishment for these crimes, began to make a confession; this soon alarmed another of the accomplices, who made an ample and full confession.

By which confessions, and those of the persons afterwards apprehended, these facts appeared: That Ford has been in the business of money-making many years; that in the Year 1767, or 1768, he followed it in New-York, but was apprehended on suspicion of making money, and admitted to bail, and even then set about preparing materials to renew the business; that he soon removed back into this country, where he again entered into it, and made a connection in Philadelphia, with a certain Captain Joseph Richardson, from whom he got a supply of types; he then attempted the New-York emission of Three Pound Bills, and made a considerable sum, but complained of the thinness of the paper, and the bad credit of the currency, at least in this and the neighbouring provinces, and gave a preference to the Jersey currency; but it is thought did little at it till the Pennsylvania emission of 1769 came out, when he, with Captain Richardson, went to Ireland, and from thence to London and the manufacturing towns; and Ford applied himself to learn the business of an engraver and type-maker, and from his knowlege before in the art of carving, and an uncommon natural genius, he, in the course of three months, became so perfect a master of the business, that on his return to America, he made all his types for his press, and in so masterly a manner, that the imitation of the Jersey and Pennsylvania bills, which were struck by them of 3*l.* and 30*s.* is so exact, that the difference cannot be discovered without the most strict examination of a person well acquainted with the true bills. From the time of his return till he was apprehended, he went on with uninterrupted success, and emitted large sums of the Jersey and Pennsylvania currency; but principally of the latter for these two years past, and was the less apprehensive of being detected for the following reasons: 1st. His bills had stood the test of the several Treasurers examinations, and had had their sanction, which he ever made an invariable rule to secure before he passed any of his new emissions. 2dly, His Press and all his implements were in an almost impenetrable swamp, at a mile's distance from his house, and in which the water most part of the year, was half leg deep, so that no person could take him, and he must crawl on his belly some rods before he could reach it. 3dly. As no person, except King and Richardson, knew where he did work, or had ever seen the place, and these, and all others concerned, were sworn to secrecy. He used to go to his work at day light in the morning, with his gun, so that no person could suspect him. Ford was called "The Treasurer for the three Provinces." He signed his own Bills. By direction of the Court a number of persons went into the swamp in search of his types, &c. but found only his press, and a leather that covered the bills when they were struck, on which was the impression of a Pennsylvania bill of 3*l.* of the emission of 1769.

Upon these facts the following persons (who were only concerned as passers of the money, except Reynolds, who procured some types for Ford) to wit, Benjamin Cooper, Esq; Doctor Bern. Bud, Samuel Haynes, and David Reynolds, were indicted and pleaded guilty to their several indictments, and on the nineteenth they received sentence of death, to be executed the seventeenth of September next. Few scenes were ever more truly affecting than the one in the Court-house, at the time of sentence passing. These four persons were remarkably handsome fine looking men, three of them about thirty, the other forty, they are all married and have children. All are descendants from the first families in the province, and all have parents living, and numerous relations. The attendance of their relations and friends added much to the solemnity of it, so much so, that it is better conceived than described. Among a thousand people there was scarce a dry eye. The spectators were more sensibly affected for those unhappy persons, as it appeared they had been drawn into it by the art, cunning and persuasion of that villain Ford. These were all the persons apprehended for capital crimes except Justice Ayres, whose crime was committed in Sussex county, it appeared that he had not been in the practice for some time past, and if any judgment can be formed of his repentance, by his conduct and carriage, it was sincere before he was suspected, as his life had lately been so exemplary, that the congregation to which he belonged, had promoted him to the rank of deacon, and the parson was so fully convinced of his innocence, that on the Sunday after his commitment, he prayed for his protection from false accusers, and the Sunday following a report prevailed that he was released, when the parson returned thanks for it; but alas! before the next Sunday, certain accounts were received that he had confessed his crime.

During these enquiries, sufficient evidence appeared to convince every one present, that Ford was one of the persons that robbed the Treasury of New-Jersey some years since, both from his own confession to one of the convicts, who declared it on oath, as also from many other circumstances. From this account of Ford, the public must view him in the light of the most accomplished villain that this country ever produced, and it is hoped it will stimulate every well-wisher to the community throughout the continent, to be watchful for, and active in, apprehending him, especially when they have the promise of five hundred pounds from the Governor of Pennsylvania, for convicting the person who counterfeited the paper currency of that province, and of his being the man, against whom there is the fullest proof.

Elias Durnford, Lieutenant-[illegible]rnor of Weſt-Florida, and his Lady, who immediately Paſſage for England, in the Eagle Packet-Boat, com-[illegible]ded by Capt. Richard Nottingham, then lying Wind-bound [illegible]ebellion-Road, which ſailed laſt Saturday.

[illegible]n Wedneſday arrived here the Hawke, from Africa, with [illegible]ut 250 Slaves, conſigned to Meſſrs. Robert, John and James [illegible]yth; the Nancy, with about 120 more, to Meſſrs. Edwards, [illegible]her, and Company; and on Saturday the King George, with [illegible]out 160, to Miles Brewton, Eſq. Theſe Arrivals have in-[illegible]eaſed the Number of Guineymen to 42, and the Number of [illegible]egroes imported to about 8050.

The ſame Day being the Anniverſary of their Majeſties Co-nation, it was obſerved here as uſual. The Forts fired at 12 Clock, and the Lizard Frigate at One.

On Thurſday arrived, in the Henry Tranſport, Capt. Met-[illegible]alfe, from St. Auguſtine, Part of the 29th Regiment. The [illegible]emainder is hourly expected; when it arrives, the Whole will [illegible]roceed to England, whither it has been ordered.

Laſt Monday Morning died, on board the above Tranſport, [illegible]ieut. Gilbert Carter, of his Majeſty's 29th Regiment.

The ſame Day died, near Winyah, George Logan, Eſq;

Alſo the ſame Day, Mr. Alexander McCormick, Taylor.

Leaving the INDICO WEED above Ground, after the Dye has been extracted from from it, we are told, is attended with ſuch pernicious Conſequences, that unleſs ſome effectual Method be ſoon taken, to oblige the Planters to bury it, it cannot be long [illegible]re we ſhall be reduced to ſubſiſt upon what the Antediluvians did—for the vaſt Quantities of Flies, produced by this Neglect, [illegible]re become ſo troubleſome to the Cattle, every where, that the Creatures cannot poſſibly feed in the Day, but run about as if mad, and thus periſh in great Numbers. The Inhabitants of the Sea Iſlands, who uſed to furniſh large Supplies of Meat for the Charles-Town Market a few Years ago, ſince they have cultivated Indico, are obliged to ſeek Supplies from hence.

While all imaginable Pains are taken in the Northern Co-onies, to diſcover and bring to Juſtice, the Counterfeiters and Utterers of COUNTERFEIT MONEY, thoſe who ſhould ſound the Alarm in this Province, where there is perhaps more ſuch circulating than in all the Reſt together, ſeem ſo perfectly in-different about the Matter, that not One Perſon in One Hundred has been enabled to diſcover the Difference between the True and the Falſe.—Had proper Enquiries been made here, in due Time, it is not impoſſible that a Scene of Villainy equal to what has been practiſed to the Northward, might long ſince have been dragged to Light, and ſaved many a Pound to many a poor Man, who has been ſuffered to be impoſed upon.

Since our laſt 3000 Buſhels of Indian Corn have been im-ported, which has reduced the Price to 17*ſ.* 6*d.* the Buſhel, while that our own raiſing ſtill ſells from 20*ſ.* to 22*ſ.* 6*d.*

We do not hear that there remains any Rice for Sale.—The laſt Price was Three Pounds Fifteen Shillings per 100 lb.

Thoughts on GRATITUDE.

GRATITUDE is ever the expreſſion of the heart; it is that virtue which binds the ſon to the father, the ſubject to his King, the friend to his friend; that forms, in ſhort, the ſweeteſt accord, the moſt charming harmony between the conſtituent members of ſociety. This ſentiment was never the work of art. Heaven aſſigned it to ſome privileged ſouls; ſo precious a gift I ſhould always prefer to all the other preſents celeſtial goodneſs ſhould prefer on us.

Ye, who never received a benefit without graving it on your hearts, envy not the ungrateful the riches, honours, and pleaſures they may enjoy! Born with that ſenſibility of ſoul, ye retain a more valuable advantage, ye poſſeſs one of the ſources of true happineſs!

I ſhall ſay then, happy the beneficent heart, happy the man that gives with generoſity; but I ſhall add, happy the grateful heart, happy he that receives with gratitude: Both have inalienable rights to the eſteem and friendſhip of the thinking and feeling perſon.—If beneficence is an aſſured mark of an enlarged ſoul, gratitude is a certain proof of its elevation: Both ſentiments are founded on grandeur and nobleneſs of ſentiment. Let us therefore not be ſurprized, if the greateſt men, if they whoſe paths were always ſtraight towards heroiſm, were alſo the moſt ſenſible of the ſervices done them.

Pyrrhus, Alexander, Alphonſus King of Arragon and Sicily, reputed it their greateſt glory never to forget a benefit: Even animals, as lions, horſes, elephants, whoſe inſtinct inſpires them with moſt grandeur, are alſo the moſt grateful. The earth makes a return in profuſion of her treaſures, in favour of thoſe who have lent her but a few ſeeds. Rivers carry in great waves to the ſea, the waters they have received from it in ſlight vapours; and thus hearts, truly grateful, never ſuffer themſelves to be conquered in generoſity; they would ſacrifice whatever is deareſt to them, even their life, for thoſe who have obliged them. Of this we have a notable example in Thuanus's hiſtory of his times.

In 1594, Marſhal d'Aumont took Crozon in Brittany from the Leaguers. He had given orders for putting all the Spaniards of the garriſon to the ſword. Notwithſtanding the penalty of death, decreed againſt thoſe who ſhould not execute the General's orders, an Engliſh ſoldier had ſaved one of the Spaniards. The Engliſhman, brought for ſo doing, before the council of war, acknowledged the fact, and added he was willing to die, provided the Spaniard had his life granted to him.

The Marſhal, ſurprized, aſked why he intereſted himſelf ſo much in ſaving him? Becauſe, anſwered he, that on a like occaſion he once ſaved my own life; and gratitude requires I ſhould now ſave his at the expence of his own. The Marſhal, quite charmed with the Engliſhman's goodneſs of heart, granted him his life with that of the Spaniard, paſſed many commendations upon them, and made them a handſome gratification.

JOHN that weeps, and JOHN that laughs.

SOMETIMES in the morning, when the ſtomach is ſick and the head achs, perhaps from the effect of nocturnal revels, the one oppreſſed with crudities, the other ſtung with fumes, or ailing by conſent, more or leſs, according to the irritation of the nervous ſyſtem, then my ſpirits dejected, and my mind fraught with gloomy imaginations, contemplates with horror over the melancholy picture of all the ills poor nature ſeems to groan under. I behold the errors, the pains, the torments, mankind is delivered up to; I conſider with myſelf the crimes, the wicked acts, the abominations, the ſcourges of that impure race the Devil keeps faſt hold of. I ſay, to mount Ætna, why all theſe ravages, whence all theſe torrents of fire that iſſue out of thy ſides? I deſire the ſeas to make reſtitution of all theſe mournful ſhores which at any time have appeared under their angry waves. I ſay to tyrants: 'Ye, who have been a greater nuiſance to the world: Ye, who have troubled it more than the rage of waves, than the flames of volcanos: Ye, whoſe ambitious caprices have deſolated it with war, and its conſequences, plague, peſtilence, and famine. In ſhort, when in this wretched abode, I attentively ſurvey the calamitous ſituation of every being that ſees the light of day, and that the ſupreme law is for ſuffering and for death, alas! alas! I WEEP!

But when at the delicious repaſt, in company with friends, or congenial ſpirits; in converſe with ladies of ſprightly notions, elegant taſte, and ſmart, yet unaffected wit; when, I ſay, in the midſt of ſuch a circle of refinement, my palate courts the learned luxury of Petronius; when my eye ſmiles on the ſparkling beauties of good wine, and my heart is exhilarated by it into newneſs of life; when, far from knaves and fools, every face is lighted up with pleaſure, and ſongs, and catches, and glees, graceful repartees and puns, have all their due graces, all their engaging charms, ſeaſoning Attically every diſh and glaſs, when, without regretting my years of bloom, I whiſper ſomething ſoft into Cælia's ear, not in the ſtrain of the inamorato's raptures, but in the feeling words of ſincere friendſhip, the only tye that binds my heart; oh! then do I forget the approaches of old-age, and my diſpoſition is quite juvenile, I am happier than any King; thouſands! thouſands of pleaſures warm and revive my ſoul!—Good lack! how then I LAUGH!

I ſee, but I keep myſelf untainted from their infection, all the cabals and parties that divide and agitate our modern politicians. I am vexed whenever I think that the purſuit of different intereſts muſt ſplit the nation into different factions. It overwhelms me with grief that infernal hatred is exerciſed by forming national diſtinctions: Here lurks the poiſon that flows in to the deſtruction of ſociety; here is the ſource of infamous calumny, and all the perverſeneſs of dark ſcandal. I am aſhamed to hear of the effuſion of human blood between ſome Northern nations for cauſes quite frivolous; yet their mutual carriage is unpitied by the ſons of Liberty; they repute them worthy of their fate, as being the enſlavers and enemies of mankind. How lamentable is the condition of that wiſe and clement King, perſecuted in his own country, and not able to find ſecurity in his royal reſidence! The invaſion of property by thieves and robbers is an accurſed wickedneſs, and puniſhed with death; but the ſlaying and plundering of whole nations is deemed glorious. Alas! how can man give into ſo flagrant an error in moral rectitude! The thoughts afflict me and I WEEP!

But, though not rich, while I have bread and liberty; while Old England's conſtitution remains, and I have nothing to dread from the uſurpation of arbitrary power; I am happy and contented: And, if at leiſure to amuſe myſelf with Swift and Butler, I ſhake away the ſpleen from my ribs: I LAUGH, I LAUGH HEARTILY!

Such, I muſt confeſs, is the round of human life! There are viciſſitudes in all things; tranſitions from joy to ſadneſs! I depend, in ſpite of me, on five ſenſes. Man is made, I know, of a divine mould; we ſhall all hereafter be glorious ſpirits: But in this world does not man ſome how participate of the nature of a machine? At times, he is ſaint or devil, an angel of light, or a fiend of darkneſs. Nature flaſhes in changes before our eyes; and the moſt ſad Heraclitus, when his affairs have taken another turn, becomes the merry Democritus.

The LIFE of MAN.

THERE is ſomething ingenious in the ancient fable of the firſt man, who at firſt was deſtined to live at moſt but twenty years; which were reducible to five, by making an eſtimate of one life with another. Man was highly irritated that his days ſhould be numbered out to him ſo ſcantily; and he had then in company with him a caterpillar, a butterfly, a peacock, a fox, and a monkey.

Prolong my life, ſaid he to Jupiter; I am of greater value than all theſe animals put together. It is but juſt that I and my children live a long time, that we may be able to command over all beaſts.—I may take your requeſt into conſideration, ſaid Jupiter; but if I do, I ſhall have but a certain number of days to divide among all the beings to which I have granted life. I cannot give you an augmentation of life without curtailing it in others; for do not imagine, becauſe I am Jupiter, that therefore I am infinite and omnipotent. I am reſtricted to my nature and meaſure. Well then, I will grant you ſome years more, by taking them away from the ſix animals, of which you ſeem ſo jealous, on condition that you ſhall have ſucceſſively all their manners of being. Man ſhall be firſt a caterpillar, by crawling as the caterpillar does, in his infancy. Till he is fifteen years old, he ſhall have all the levity and volatility of the butterfly, and in his youth the vanity of a peacock. In his manhood, he muſt work and labour as much as the horſe. Towards fifty he will have the cunning of a fox; and in his old age he will be ugly and ridiculous like the monkey. This generally ſhall be man's deſtiny.

Remark ſtill, that, notwithſtanding Jupiter's bounty, the animal man, if matters are rightly ſtated, has at moſt but twenty-two or twenty-three years to live: For, by taking mankind in general, one third muſt be deducted for the time of ſleep, during which man may be thought as dead: there remains much about fifteen years; from theſe fifteen, ſubſtract at leaſt eight for the time of childhood, which is, as has been ſaid, the threſhold of life; the net produce will be ſeven years; of theſe ſeven years, the half, at leaſt, is ſpent in pains of all ſorts; ſet down three years and a half for work and labour, for diſguſt and diſſatisfaction; and how many will have no life at all! What now can the poor animal man be proud of?

Indeed his former Sales, he hopes, have already convinced his Cuſtomers, that he ſells as cheap as any other of the Trade, and declares upon his Word, that his Articles are not in the leaſt inferior to theirs, though ſeveral of them are much under their Prices.—He likewiſe now takes the Liberty of informing his Friends and Cuſtomers, that he has engaged to pay thoſe he has his Goods from, punctually once a Year, therefore hopes his Cuſtomers will not think him unreaſonable in requeſting annual Payments from them; for unleſs they enable him to keep up his Credit at Home, it will be impoſſible for him to ſupply them on the low Terms he means to do.
